LECTURE 1: Mitakshara Hindu Joint Family

The Mitakshara Law applies to the whole of India except Bengal and Assam. Under this law as it existed until the amendments made by The Hindu Succession (Amendment) Act, 2005, the son acquires by birth an interest in the ancestral property. Ancestral property, under the Mitakshara Law, thus devolves on the death- of a coparcener by survivorship. Mitakshara law recognizes two kinds of devolution of property as follows: -

1. Devolution by Succession is applicable to the Joint family property and
2. Devolution by Survivorship is applicable to Property held in severalty by the last owner.
