

PROGRAM SPECIFIC OUTCOMES (PSO)

PSO 1: All the undergraduate and postgraduate shall have the ability to apply fundamental knowledge of human anatomy, physiology, microbiology, pharmacology, general pathology and dental anatomy in the specialization of subject periodontology.

PSO 2: All the undergraduate and postgraduate shall have the ability to integrate biological knowledge and concepts with the ethical and industrial perspectives of periodontology and life sciences.

PSO 3: All the undergraduate and postgraduate shall have the ability to work in groups or individually to develop written and oral presentations skills for scientific presentations in national and international conferences. Students are expected to engage in independent and lifelong learning in the context of periodontal treatment advancements.

PSO 4: All the undergraduate and postgraduate shall have the ability to apply latest technology and skills to treat the periodontal disease.