

Innovations in Teaching & Learning:

As a student of Journalism and Mass Communication an approach towards journalism is being developed from the very beginning of the course, different activities, projects assignments, co curricular activities, making of short documentaries, news reading, and anchoring are done by the students which makes them mentally ready for tomorrow risk. The activities make their mind sharp and develop the journalistic attitude. The course is specially designed to equip students with a multi-skilled qualification approach for rapidly emerging domain in which skills, career and job market are increasingly transient in order to meet industrial goals and sustain within media industry. It also provides insight about the essentials of Media laws and ethics in the journalism such as print, electronic and digital outlets. It inculcates responsibilities of the journalist and train students who really want to become journalists of tomorrow. Students are also benefitted with periodic visits to various media houses.
